Among the many cities in the Low Countries which form the Dutch Barrier, are Namur, Luxembourg, Dendermonde, and Tournay: Of thefe, the fuft is totally gazrifoned by Dutch troops; the two next, by equal proportions of Imperialists and Dutch; and Tournay energy by the Dutch. These are among the towns which the Emperor is going to dismande, but it is thought that Namor, Laxembourg, and Antwerp, will be excepted from the general orders; though in general all the other towns in Austrian Flanders are to be diffmantled, except Often, whose fortifications towards the sea are to re-main in their present condition, but those towards the land are to be levelled with the earth. By this resolution of the Emperor to dellroy the fortifica-tions of towns, the guarding of which was given to the Durch, as a security to their frontier against the invasions of the French, the very spirit of the Barrier Treaty will become extinct, contrary to the faith and intentions of the different powers who were parties in that treaty, either as principles or guarantees; and the Dutch, whose destruction could not but be injurious to England in particular, and to the balance of power in general, must, by this flagrant infraction of treaty, be left exposed to the invalions of the French, who finding no fortified place to the republic, before the rould be put in a proper posture of defence.

In Mothing can be more likely so affect a peace between England and Holland, than the resolution of the Emparer to dismabile the barrier towns; for it may be remembered, that, at the beginning of the Dutch war, Lord North faid, in the House of Commons, that nothing but the most prefing need-five could have induced him to advise his Majesty to go to war with the republic. He knew that the interests of Holland and of England were inseparable; and to sincere was he in this affection, in that if to morrow any attempt should be made to violate the Barrier Treaty, he would immediately advise that the prefent dispute should be compromised, and that England, coming forward to the affittance of the Dutch, should make one common canse with them. Time will show whether we shall be obliged to embark in the cause of that people; who, milled by the factions of France, have forced their test friend to become their enemy for a while.

By the demolition of the barrier towns in the Low Comtines, the Dutch will be obliged to call home to or 12,000 of their troops, that are actually in garrison there be this will very sikely create contained in the republic of the demolition of the Barrier towns in the Low Comtines, the Dutch will be obliged to call home to or 12,000 of their troops, that are actually in garrison there be this will very sikely create contained in the republic of the day at the army at home is already too numerous, and it as part of it ought to be reduced, that the Republic might be the better able to bear the heavy expences of increasing and improving the navy; the other party thinks the army not less heartflary than the navy, as it would be in an that the people should raise up treasures out of commerce, if there was not an army to deter their coverous neighbours from coming to plunder and carry it off.

deter their covetous neighbours from coming to pluster and carry it off.

Since it has been agreed between Sir Henry Clinton and the Americans, that the equivalent for the release of a Lieutenant-General shall be 1040 private soldiers, the 10st at York-Town instead of being $125, may, including an equivalent for Lord Cornwallis's release, be estimated at 9165; this must be the case; for as the Americans have no Lieutenant-General in their service, it is impossible that we should have in our hands an officer of equal military rank with his Lordship. The confequence therefore must be, either that we shall be obliged to give 1040 men for his Lordship's release, or else that he must remain a prisoner, till a peace shall set him at liberty: Either alternative must be distressing to us; if we were to give 1040 men for his release, we should lose the benefit of the late success of Admiral Kempensels, in taking the transports that had troops on board for the West Indies; on the other hand, it must be distressing to our feelings to keep that man a prisoner, who has added such distinguished suffre to the name of Britos. The following is nerestative the petition presented by Mr Borke

The following is nerbatine the petition prefeated by Mr Burks on Thursday last, at the rising of the House of Commons:

To the Right Hon. CHARLES WOLFRAN CORN.

WALL, Speaker, and the Humourable the HOUSE of COMMONS.

The REPRESENTATION and PRAYER of HENRY LAURENS, a naive of South Carolina, forme time recognized by the British Commissioners in America, by the stile and title of his Excellency HENRY LAURENS, Prefident of Congress, now a close prisoner in the Tower of London.

dent of Congress, now a close prisoner in the Tower of London;

Most respectfully showeth.

THAT your representer for many years, at the peril of his life and fortune, evidently laboured to preserve and strengthen the ancient friendling between Great Britain and the Colonies; and that in no instance he ever excited, on either side, the differences which separated them.

That the commencement of the present war was a subject of great grief to him, in as much as he foresaw and foretold, in letters now extant, the distresses which both countries experience at this day.

That, in the rise and progress of the was, he extended every act of kindness in his power to persons called Loyalists, and Quietells, as well as to British paisoners of war, very ample proofs of which he can produce.

That he was captured on the American doubt, first landed upon American ground, where he saw exchanges of British and American prisoners in a course of negotiamon; and that such exchanges and enlargements upon parole, are mutually and daily practified in America.

That he was committed to the Tower on the oth of October 1781, being then dangeroully ill; that, in the mean time, he has, in many respects, particularly by being deprived swith very little exception) of the visits and consolations of his children, and other relations and friends, suffered under a degree of rigour almost, if not altogether, unexampled in anodern British history.

That, from long confinement, and the want of proper exercife, and other obvious causes, his bodily health is greatly impaired, and that he is now in a languishing state; and

Therefore, your representer humbly prays your Honours will condefeend to take his case into consideration; and, under proper conditions and restrictions, grant him enlargement, or such other relief as to the wisdom and benignity of your Honours nours shall feem fitting. HENRY LAURENS

Extract of a letter from a passenger on heard a Venetian ship fust arrived from Gibraltar.

On the 22d of November, the wind being contrary, put into Gibraltar Bay, between Asseziras and the camp at St Roque, about his miles from the Spanish camp, and eight from the state. There was very little bring till the 26th; but on the state, at two in the morning till the 26th; but on the state, at two in the morning till the 26th; but on Gibraltar. There was very little bring till the 26th; but on the 27th, at two in the morning, the Bay was alarmed with a terrible firing from the very top to the bottom of the rock, of bombs, chreaftes, and camon. About ten minutes after I had the pleasure to see the most advanced battery of the Spanish lines on fire in every part of it at once. This fort was very near Gibraltar, and the Spaniards placed all their hopes on it, as the bombs from it were to reach the works on Europa Point. They had been one year and a half at work on it, and had lost 1200 then in it. By the help of the great free, we could observe great confusion in the Spanish Lamb, and heard a very brisk firing of managuery, far two hours, far to very thing feemed presty quiet, but the fort till in a great blaze. ceedings relative to the new flaughtering houses proposed to be erected by the Incorporation of Buchers of this city. Upon the matter being again brought before the Council this day, we are informed the Lord Provott addressed them to the following purpose:

That, on this business being agitated in Council, some weeks ago, the Corporation of Buchers published a Memorial on the conduct of the Magistrates, replete with misrepresenta-

"On the faith of this Memorial, feveral parts of which were afterwards contradicted by the authors of it themselves, did a majority of the Trades of this city publish their disapprehation of the conduct of the Magistrates and Council in this affair, without doing them the justice, or paying them the attention, to enquire into the motives by which they were actuated,—a piece of respect they were justly entitled to, from that disperented spirit, and wish to do their duty to the Public, which has hisherto been a leading feature in their character. And he trufted, that, in the further profecution of this bufi-ness, though fome of them have already allowed themselves to be carried away by a zeal for what they thought to be the in-terests of a few individuals, a very great majority of them would not be inattentive to those of the inhabitants of this great city not be inattentive to those of the inhabitants of this great city at large.

"That Mr Robertson, on the part of his corporation, did, some time ago, lay before the Lord Provost's Committee a model of a court of slaughtering houses they purposed building in the vicinity of the present Flash Market, which Mr Robertson represented would effectually remove the inconveniencies and dangerous consequences attendant on the present mode of slaughtering cattle? That the members of that Committee proposed to him, as the method most satisfactory to the Public that he would lay his model before Captain Fraser, Chief Engineer for Scotland, and one or two more gentlemen of skill, to have their onnium, whether it would answer these ends on to have their opinion, whether it would answer these ends or not. : And, on his getting a favourable report from these gennot. And, on his getting a favourable report from these gentlemen, the Committee begged he would next consult some of the most eminent Physicians and Surgeons in this city, how far the proposed plan would a seet the health of the inhabitant, and then report to them the result of these consultations. This Mr Robertson accordingly promised to do. That his Lordships thought it his duty to alk the opinion of the Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons, as to the influence it might have on the health of the inhabitants of this city, were the plan of the Buthers quaried into execution. "Before he far down, he could not but take notice; that every objection made by the Buchers to the object of the petition his Lordship had moved for, out the ground of hurting heir property in the Flesh Market Close, or their rights as a Corporation, have been fully removed; and he should be extremely forry if any thing he had faid should tend to hurt the interests of any individual, in so far as the good of the Public at large should not be prejudiced by the supporting of them."

We hear that the second motion was unanimously agreed to; and the opinions of the Physicians, See, ordered to be on the table.

Saturday, night acrived in town, Cape Cravie, late of the Swallow finack of this place, He informs us, that on the 15th of November, being on his voyage from London, he was boarded and taken off Portlethen, by a boat belonging to a Krench privateer, called the Chaulieu of Dunkirk, Capt. Caffaignier, of 14 guns, and about 80 men. The crew used them very ill, and robbed him and a passenger of their watches, money, and every valuable thing they could lay their hands on. When they came on board the privateer, however, they received the kindest treatment from the Captain and officers. The Captain, after expressing his regret for their ill usage, bought ved the kindest treatment from the Captain and officers. The Captain, after expressing his regret for their ill usage, bought back from the crew the watches of which Capt. Cravie and a passenger had been robbed, and restored them, adding, (in a note which he wrote and gave Captain Cravie to carry home with him,) that after the kind usage he himself had received, when he was taken by Captain Lee of Liverpool, and Captain Vernon of the Greyhound, in June last, (being then Captain of the Countest de Maurepas cutter of Boulogne,) he should always esteem the English as friends. The crew of the privateer were a mostley gathering of Genoese, and other foreigners, and had no Frenchmen on board but the Captain and officers. The Swallow was carried to Eggersound in Norway, where the crew were set at liberty, and got a passage home in a vessel bound to Peterhead. bound to Peterhead.

To the Hanourable the Magificates of Edinburgh.

ONLY repeat the private senument of my fellow-citizens, in declaring, that your attention to the ornament of Edinburgh, and the convenience of its inhabitants, has insured you the favour of the public. Convinced that you will not overselook a matter of evident utility, I take the liberty of suggesting the public of a much wanted improvement upon our New Bridge. It will readily be allowed, that produced ever ought to yield to use; but, I may rentire to affert, that, in Britain, perhaps in Europe, no inflance can be given where use stands to absolutely facinical to anament, as by the open baluffers of the New Pridge.

ac. The cold blafts condenfed by our numerous closes is per-haps an incurable evil in the Old Town. By them thousands have been blown to the Gray Friars.

When new plans are lattis the errors of the former are generally corrected a but, by the confirmation of the parapet of the Bridges the evil is establed upon the New Town, in a triplicate proportion. Every time a man passes in bad weather, he actually runs the gauntet through the vengeful regiment of congus, rheumatisms, tooth-ashs, and fore throats. The wind blows almost constantly upon one file or other of this Bridge.

blows almost constantly upon one file or other of this Bridge. The valley over which it is thrown collects and heightens the fary of a tempest. If the Prince of the Power of the Air, or any of his angels are abroad, their place of triumph for certain is the New Bridge of Edinburgh. Upon these occasions, every parlenger deels unearly. Often have I observed deadiers and not feldom Gentlemen, stopping, hearting and sollecting their forthade, for the attempt of passing; and there are days in winter, when the children and semales of my family have been as effectually arrested on the different sides of the Bridge, as they would have been by the Prish of Footh in a form.

as they would have been by the Prith of Forth in a storm.

Our climate is remarkably builtarons and fields: It is there-

Our chimate is remarkably boiltarous and nekte: It is therefore the business of those who are exposed to it, as far as art will go, to disarm the typant, nooso increase his power.

I am affured that she miletief may be completely remedied, by closing the balusteades with timber at a moderate expense, and even-without hurring the ornament. The beauty of the balustrades is not intended for those who pass the Bridge: The distant spectator is alone to be struck by it. If then the timber be painted black on the outside, the original effect will be fully preserved, and a comfortable walk afforded, under the procespreferved, and a comfortable walk afforded, under the protec-tion of a folid parapet, where pallengers will hear the winds idly rage over their heads. Do this, ye Guardians of the city, and your praises will resound from north to fouth, and from fouth

LANDS in the COUNTY of DUMFRIES. To be SOLD by public soluntary roup and fale, within the King's Aarms Tavern of Dumfries, upon Thursday the 7th day of Fe-

Aarms Tavern of Dumfries, upon Thursday the 7th day of February nest, between the hours of two and five o'clock afternoon,
The following SUBJECTS, which belonged to the deceafed GEORGE MACKENZIE of Netherwood, viz.
All and Whole the LANDS and ESTATE of NETHERWOOD, comprehending the five merk Lands of Conheathrig;—the fifty-two aeres of old extent, called the Lands of Spittlefeld;—the Lands of Over and Nether Netherwood and Langholm —the Lands called the Mains;
—the piece of J. and called the Qx-Gangpi—the Lands of Caffled, ke; —and the Lands called the Windmill Park; with the Fifthing called the Caffledykes Fifthing, on the water of Nith, lying in the parifh and thire of Damfries.

Castledykes Fishing, on the water of Nith, lying in the parish and thire of Damfries.

This estate contains near 900 Scots statute acres of land, whereof 70 are of rich merse. It lies within a quarter of a mile of the burgh of Dumfries, along the hanks of she river Nith; and the whole of it is arable, excepting the Merse, which, in point of feeding cattle, is superior in value to any part of the lands.

The estate, within these sew years bypast, has been laid out into regular farms, and subdivided into neat and beautiful inclosures; new and complete farm-houses, with commodious offices, have been built upon each farm; and the whole (excepting the farm of Rosehall, and one inclosure, being part of the farm of Castledykes) are let upon leafes to good and substantial tenants. The present rental of this estate is 10981. It s. sterling; which, when some of the tacks expire, will rise considerably. Part of the estate holds of the Crown, and entitles the proprietor to a freehold qualification; and the other parts, of the town of Dumfries, for payment of a strilling sendate. The relieds have been valued, on account of which, shose parts of the lands lying search the town of Dumfries, and which are in every respect equal to boroughroud lands, are the more saluable, because they have a small proportion of the teinds payable to the middles, it terms of the late augmentation.

The vicinity of this charte to the town of Dumfries, its fittation on the banks of a navigable river, and the excellent foils of which it is composed, are ftrong recommendations of its where. Any purchaser, who chuses to reside on the estate, may have it in his power to sit down upon the farm of Rosehall, which is presently out of tack; and upon which there is built a next and elegant dwelling-house, shables to contain 100 head of cattle, barm, byres, peat and coal houses, and gramaries, with other conveniencies. The whole estate has been laid out in the modern taste, and all the division-dykes have been planted with trees, adapted as much for use as ornament.

In particular, the farm of Roschall, which contains of isself about 130 acres, has received, from the hands of the late proprietor, the most complete and elegant improvement. It is furrounded by a belt of planting, which contains barren timber of every species; and shrubry of the most hardy, beautiful, and variegated kinds. The division-dykes and avenues are likewise planted and interspersed with trees, which, with the hedges, are in the most shriving condition. There is also an orchard upon this farm, which contains about eight acres, and is planted with fruit-trees of the best kinds, which have been collected from different parts of Scotland and England, and consist of apple, pear, cherry, and gean.

The fituation of the house, which is placed in the centre of the farm, and between a neat garden and shrubry one hand, and the orchard on the other, is truly pleasant and engaging. Its commanding prospect of the adjacent service country in and about the neighbourhood of Dumfries, and the Solway Frith and viver Nith, with the view of the woody banks of Kirkconnell, Mabie, and others, lying on the opposite side of the river, with that of its more charming and near prospect of the well-improven fields of the estate of Netherwood itself. will recommend its

the river, with that of its more charming and near prospect of the wellimproven fields of the estate of Netherwood itself, will recommend its value to any person who may delight in a country retreat, or who wishes to have a prospect of nature heightened by the hands of art, lying befere him in an eachanting and personents, which include some seus, will be exposed at twenty-five years purchase of the rental; and the purchase's entry will commence from the term of Whitfunday next, 1782.

As ALSO, All and Whole three several Merk-lands of the Tenmerk Land of ARKINGISOLM, and Houses built thereon, lying in the parish of Langholm, and shire forestist, with the fundry seus belonging to the faid lands, situated in the vistage of Langholm. These lands hold of a subject superior, and are presently rented at 301. Sterling yearly, exclusive of the seus, which amount to 81. 6 s. 8 d. Sterling.

This property has been largly inclosed and subdivided by strong and sufficient stone dykes, and lies within half a mile of the said village of Langholm. A great part of the premisses arable, and the remainder being passure-ground, is equally adapted for the seeding of black cattle as of theep. The upster-price, will also be twenty-five years purchase of the rental, and the purchaser's entry at Whitsunday 1782.

As Al.SO, All and Whole A LARGE TENEMENT OF HOUSES, with the Yard, Stable, and Coach-house, tying in the burgh of Dumfries, near the Southgate Rort, bounded by the tenement belonging to the heirs of John M. Kie vintuer, on the south, the tenement and yand belonging to Dofor Copland on the north, the High Street on the east, and the Irish gate on the west. This subject is presently rented at 301. Sterling, and will also be exposed at twenty-five years purchase.
The House stells is situated in a part of the town which commands a full view of the High Street, and, in point of convenience and elegance, it is sarpassed by none in the town of Dumstries. The purchaser's entry will be at Whitsunday 1782.

And lastly, All

it is farpaffed by none in the town of Dumfries. The purchaser's entry will be at Whitfunday 1782.

And laftly, All and Whole TWO PARKS or INCLOSURES of LAND, lying in the welfmost part of the Barker Land, within the territory of the burgh of Dumfries, as they are prefently let to good and unexceptionable tenants, at the yearly rent of 9 l. to s. Sterling.

These Parks are presently is good condition, and are lying in grass, and will be exposed at the upset-prize of 237 l. 10 s. Sterling, being twenty-five years purchase of the rental.

Edgar Wright, servant at Roseball, will show the estate of Netherwood. Michael Purves, tenant of Arkingholm, will show the lands of Arkingholm and feus in Langholm. William Maclean shoemaker in Dumfries will show the parks at Barkerland. And the house in Dum-

Dumfries will how the parks at parkerson. Also use frome in Dum-fries may be feen at any time by calling thereat.

The rental of the whole subjects, the file-deeds, which are clear and unexceptionable, and the articles of roup, with a plan of the citate of Netherwood, are lodged in the hands of Simon Mackenzie and James. Retherwood, are longed in the hands of Simon Mackenzie and James Graham writers in Durafties, to whom, or to Mr Hugh Corrie writer to the fignet in Edinburgh, any person intending to become a purchaster may apply for further information.—A copy of the rental, and inventary of the title-deeds, with a copy of the articles of roup, may also be een in the hands of the faid Hugh Corrie. This effate lies about mid-way between Perth and Dundes, on the two public roads to these towns, in the heart of the Carse of Gownis, which is known to be one of the most beautiful and fertile countries in Scotland. It is of great extent, and consists of a proper proportion of carse and orbergrounds. The finit is of the richest and most substantial nature, and produces crops of all kinds of the very helf quality. The barrony measures is large, and the victual-farm gives the highest prices. The tenants are all in good circumstances, the rents regularly made, and ne arrears upon the estate, which being capable of great improvement, a purchaser will have every prospect of rises as the leases drop.

The fine navigable river Tay runs through the Carse; and there is a harbour in it, within a mile of the estate of Inchmartine.

There are many valuable old trees on the Carse estate, and an extensive thriving young plantation in the hill of Pitmiddle.
